

FRECCIAROSSA MILANO JUMPING CUP

THIRTEEN NATIONS, 130 RIDERS WITH 224 HORSES

The show jumping stars include world number one Martin Fuchs

Milan, June 23rd - The rise in the international sporting scene of the Frecciarossa Milano Jumping Cup, the great international event focused on show jumping, continues at a fast pace. The entire competitive aspect is on the rise, with an eye on the 2023 European Championships that the International Equestrian Federation has decided to assign precisely to the historic Milanese facility.

The San Siro Racecourse opened its gates to international horse shows for the first time in July 2021 and did so with the great style that has always distinguished it, despite the penalising restrictions imposed by Covid regulations.

In the heart of the racing facility, at the centre of the tracks, an organised complex of last generation equestrian sports arenas was created, designed and built following the advice of top international experts. Milan's great show is confirmed by the number of participants and by the names of top-class riders who will be competing from June 24th to June 26th.

Compared to the first edition, this event has moved up to 4* level with total prizemoney amounting to 250,000 euros (100,000 more than last time) and with 13 nations competing (compared to 10 in 2021) - Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hong Kong, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Switzerland, the United States and of course Italy – for a total of 130 riders and 224 horses.

RIDERS READY TO GO LED BY SWITZERLAND'S DREAM TEAM

Two Swiss riders, world number 1 Martin Fuchs and Steve Guerdat are among many famous names jumping in the Frecciarossa Milano Jumping Cup.

Fuchs made it to the top spot of the international ranking this month after a two and a half year long wait. Since early in 2020, the Swiss rider has always been up at the top of the ranking placed among the 'Top Four'. Fuchs added to his prestigious CV filled with many other wins, victory in the World Cup final in Leipzig and last summer won individual silver at the Riesenbeck European Championships.

It seems pointless to emphasise that the 29-year-old top rider is arriving in Milan as a favourite.

Steve Guerdat too is not to be outdone. The winner of the 2012 London Olympics will in fact be looking forward to celebrating his recent 40th birthday with a big win in Milan.

There are 8 other riders supporting the Swiss team in the CSI4*, among them an exceptional competitor such as Pius Schweizer, who together with Guerdat and Fuchs was a member of the team that after 26 years won the St Gallen CSIO Nations Cup in front of a home crowd.

FRECCIAROSSA MILANO JUMPING CUP

Important German riders instead include the winner of the 2021 Rolex Grand Prix in Rome, David Will, who will also be carefully watched in view of the excellent results he has achieved in recent weeks (first in the Wiesbaden and München-Riem Grands Prix), while remaining on the subject of important wins in Italy, Belgium will be able to rely on Abdel Said, winner of the World Cup Grand Prix at Jumping Verona in 2016 when he was still competing for Egypt.

Austria is fielding Stefan Eder, also a winner this year of the Grand Prix at the Montefalco 4* show while Great Britain is sending Joe Whitaker, nephew of the famous John and Michael.

Italy has 38 riders in this CSI4* and among them there are some of Italian show jumping's recently successful stars such as Emilio Bicocchi, Luca Marziani, Bruno Chimirri and Emanuele Gaudio. Gaudio is determined to confirm his status as the top winner among Italy's riders and increase the 47 international wins achieved so far this season including the CSI4* Poznan Grand Prix.

"I am excited to be riding at the San Siro Racecourse, a fabulous facility right in the centre of Milan," said the Italian rider who now lives permanently in Germany, "I wasn't here last year but this time the show has risen to 4* and in 2023 the racecourse will host the European Championships. The arenas are wonderful and it is an extraordinary guarantee to have Uliano Vezzani here as chef de piste. I will be riding three horses in the Milano Jumping Cup: Nikolay de Music (9-year-old bred in Belgium), a horse I have ridden in four other CSI5* Grands Prix (St. Tropez, Paris, S'Hertogenbosch and Abu Dhabi), Crack Balou (10-year-old Hanoverian), the horse I rode in the 2021 Rome Grand Prix and Stalensky (11-year-old Oldenburg) with which I have won two classes this year."
